READERSHIP

Our readers are active and involved. If they are not pottering in the garden they are preparing glorious dinners, planning the summer holiday, attending an evening course in French or listening to Lucinda Riley's latest in the car on the way home from work.

Awaiting them at home is this week's copy of Hemmets Journal and a moment of pleasant relaxation. The magazine will keep them company for at least two hours during the coming week. We give readers recreation, practical tips and exciting stories from real life. Just like a good and close friend!

The readers are mature women (50+) and they live throughout the country, primarily in small and medium-sized towns.
